Thank you for your application.

After review, you do not meet the requirements of the Iowa House of Representative's press credentialing policy. The House does not credential outlets that are nontraditional/independent in nature. This does not prevent you from covering the proceedings of the Iowa House. In case you were unaware, all subcommittee and committee meetings are open to the public. You are also able to observe floor action from the public galleries on the north and south sides of the House chamber (accessible via the third floor), as well as stream it online via the Legislative website. Press credentials are not required to attend or observe these functions.

If you're interested in obtaining an interview with a specific State Representative, I'd encourage to reach out to them directly. Both the House Republicans and House Democrats have Communications Directors that can help arrange.

Thank you,
