Christina Bohannon is the Democrat who will unseat Rep. Miller-Meeks next November. She nearly flipped this seat last cycle, losing by just 799 votes, after moving the rating from Lean R to Toss up—which is where it begins this cycle. After raising \$500k within 24 hours of launch, polling shows Bohannon leading Miller-Meeks by 4 points.

###

Iowa's 1st Congressional District contains the cities of Davenport, Iowa City, Burlington, and Indianola. Rep. Mariannette Miller-Meeks faces a rematch against Christina Bohannon, who came within 0.2% of defeating the incumbent in 2024. Bohannon lost by just 799 votes out of 413,000 and outperformed the top of the ticket by over 8 points – more than any other Red-to-Blue candidate in the country. National forecasters, including the Cook Political Report, universally rate this district as a Toss-Up for 2026. With Rep. Miller-Meeks showing historic weakness at just 31% favorability and facing growing opposition even within her own party, Bohannon has the best opportunity to flip a Republican seat in the country.
